Introduction

Since the publication of the Dinky and Matchbox Toy Price Guides I have received many letters from all over the world asking for a similar book on Corgi Toys.

Although not founded until 1956, long after Dinky, Corgi rapidly gained a reputation for the excellence of their products. Windows, sprung suspension, opening doors and jewelled headlights were among the features that made Corgi toys so attractive and has, as a result, greatly increased their appeal to collectors.

Although the models were rarely less than excellent their numbering left a lot to be desired. Unlike some other manufacturers, who produced models in numerical order, many of Corgi's reference numbers have no relation at all to their date of issue. This means that this guide has been compiled in a different way to the other titles in the series. Except where models have a numerical sequence, Corgi Juniors for example, most of the book has been set in alphabetical order within years of manufacture where appropriate. Thus it should be possible to identify a particular model even if it doesn't have a reference number.

Many people helped with the compilation of this book but I would like to thank especially Bill Baxter, for many years Marketing Manager of Corgi, and Julie Davies and Susan Pownall of the same company. Above all, my thanks to my wife Anne for all the hours of typing and helping me to sort out the many colours and variations of Corgi items.

The Corgi Story

Corgi Toys had its origins just after the end of the Second World War with the Mettoy Playcraft company making tin plate cars, fire engines, trucks and buses but it was not until 1956 that the first Corgi toys proper were produced. It started under the guidance of a Technical Director called Howard Fairburn in a small corner of a factory in Swansea which had previously manufactured pressed steel toys. In the early days it was a family company with a work force of 300 people. This introduction of Corgi diecast cars in 1956 soon went from strength to strength and by the 1970s the workforce in the diecast area numbered well over 3,000 people.

The first models were introduced in August and September 1956 and created quite a stir, even though diecast models themselves were not a novelty. Moulded clear plastic windscreens and side windows gave the Corgi toys a quality look that, at that time, their rivals lacked.

One of the earliest marketing lessons that Corgi learnt was that exotic cars sold significantly better than everyday models. A model totally unknown in Britain, the Studebaker Golden Hawk, was one of their first successes and as a result the marketing and design teams kept their eyes open for exciting cars that could be successfully transformed into diecast miniatures.

Corgi have always been considered innovators and perfectionists. 1959 saw the introduction of suspension, self adhesive accessories, and the first trimmed interior in a splendid Plymouth Station Wagon. In 1960 an Aston Martin DB4 was introduced with a hinged bonnet opening to reveal a model engine beneath, a feature soon to be copied by other manufacturers. Glidamatic spring suspension of the wheels was introduced in 1960 and then in 1961 a two toned Mulliner bodied Bentley Continental appeared with front wheels mounted on castored stub axles so that pressure on one side of the car resulted in the wheels steering the car in the direction required. Jewelled headlights, opening boots with spare wheels, ruby rear lights and an automatic bonnet opening mechanism were other features introduced in 1961.

The sixties also saw the advent of proper opening doors and detachable wheels with built in jacks. The Walls Musical Ice Cream Van created a sensation as did the release of Batman's Batmobile and Batboat.

Speed became the important marketing element in the 1970's with whizz wheels and Rockets leading the way. Corgi Rockets had detachable chassis' for speed adjustment completed by a special Rockets key. Drivers could even tune up the models with a special lubricant. Track sets, too, had a wide range of amazing features which made sure that Corgi kept its preeminent place in the market.

The beginning of the 1980's saw the introduction of electronics into the Corgi range. Models such as the London Routemaster and the Police Land Rover incorporated silicon chip technology and, in the case of the sonic controlled BL Landtrain there was even light and sound. Famous cars of the 1950's were reintroduced in the Corgi Classics series. The six first models included the Mercedes 300SL 'Gullwing', the Jaguar XK 120 and the 1957 Ford Thunderbird. The Veteran car models then became known as Classic Classics. But in spite of good models and continuing innovation Corgi, tragically, began to run into financial trouble in the early 1980's.

After a brief period in liquidation the company came back with a bang in 1985. In developing a new range for the company Corgi have drawn extensively on market research. On the one hand they are concentrating much more on the collector's market but on the other they are working with children to find out their needs as well. As a result seventy five per cent of the range has been revamped and more than thirty five new models introduced.

As well as a repackaged and revitalised range of small scale Corgi Juniors there has been a certificated limited edition of four models intended primarily for the collector's market. The 1919 Renault 12/16, the 1912 Rolls-Royce Silver Ghost, the 1915 Model T Ford and the 1927 3 litre Bentley launched this new development.

While retaining and even improving upon the quality for which Corgi has been known over the years, the new streamlined Company has been able to keep highly competitive. All Corgi products are manufactured in Great Britain and Corgi now has production costs that are unbeatable by any other major diecast manufacturer in the world.

The success of Corgi is the story of a British Company proving that with the right marketing policies, and the commitment to pursue progressive objectives, success is possible in a truly competitive marketplace.

The Corgi Collector Magazine

I must write a few words in this introduction about the Corgi Collector Magazine, the brainchild of Don Fuller, who, in early summer 1984 created a collector's newsletter, followed by the October issue of a ten page booklet called the 'Corgi Collector'.

The response to the booklet was fantastic and a few words taken from the Editor's introduction were as follows:-

Response to the first issue has been overwhelming, with correspondence arriving daily, mostly congratulatory but with a few complaints from bus collectors regarding the non-availability of some specials. In reply I would like to defend our position. From time to time we have important visitors to our works and on these occasions we like to present something unique for the visitor to take away as a memento of his or her visit.

I have received many letters suggesting models we should produce and all your views are appreciated. The collecting fraternity will be delighted with our choice of models. Finally, a number of collectors have requested a special model to be made available only to 'Corgi Collector' subscribers. The answer is 'Yes', this will happen as soon as all our resources are engaged in finalising our 1985 range and satisfying our current order books, so please be patient. Don Fuller.

The special model for the Corgi Collector was despatched to all subscribers in October/November 1985, a superb Thornycroft Van which was a true collectable investment.

The purpose of the little booklet was to give the collector an up to date account of what was being produced. It told of special meetings where Corgi reps could be seen and talked to. Whether you collected an M.G., a Sealink Transporter, a Routemaster bus or a fire engine the information was authentic.

The issue in December improved, the number four book for January was even better and by the release of number seven in August it had improved still further and the subscription had gone up from £2 to £7 for the seven issues.

Manufacturing Processes

What is diecast?

The use of zinc alloy in the manufacture of toys enables the production of extremely strong, accurately detailed, bright, shiny and permanently decorated products.

Engineering and production skills and processes

Making diecast toys calls for more precision, longer lead times and greater skill than the layman would imagine. In an average large scale Corgi for instance there is a tooling investment of around £60,000, 60 weeks of development, the manufacture and assembly of 32 separate parts (the most critical of these engineered to within 1/10,000 inch).

The end product will retail for £2.99p, will be capable of withstanding $\frac{1}{4}$ ton of pressure, will be covered in paint so tough it can resist the most violent buffeting and will continue to stretch a child's imagination for years.

From inspiration to manufacture

The process of tool production encompasses the following:

— Model selection
— Feasibility study/costing
— Model design
— Prototype model (Go/No go decision)
— Component design (viz. how the parts fit, where split line occurs etc)
— Pattern making — Models in 1 :12 scale are carved in limewood to enable the maker to ensure the model totally captures the 'sculpture' of the original

— Mould design
— Tool making — in hardened steel using modern techniques like spark erosion.
— Production engineering tooling — nests for parts, jigs, fixtures, plates for decoration.
— Production development — the fine tuning of tools in the factory

From tool to finished toy
The processes incorporate:
— Bulk metal melting
— Zinc alloy is melted at temperatures of 800°F and is fed in a continuous molten river through a launder to — Casting machines (all of which are custom built internally)
— Castings are then tumbled in a barrelling process to remove sharp edges and proceed to — Final flash removal and — Final tooling (the boring of holes for roof beacons etc) and cleaning.

Corgi progress into a series of sub assemblies (doors, boots, bonnets to bodies) and electrostatic painting. Each car is painted in this economical way and subjected to stoving at 300°F for 10 minutes. Secondary decoration (pad printing, labelling, mask spraying and plating) comes next and is followed by final assembly.

In parallel with this (which relates specifically to diecast parts) a series of operations in plastics occurs. Plastics are used in interiors, windows, wheels, trims etc.

A variety of plastics are injection moulded and delivered to final assembly. They include polythene, polystyrene, polypropylene, polycarbonate, CAB (used in windows — the same material used in industrial safety glasses), nylon and ABS.

A speciality within the production process is vacuum metalling, a process whereby plastic parts are covered with a tough, thin film of aluminium.

All Corgi wheels and trims are moulded and assembled to stainless steel axles. These are then assembled to chassis' and passed to final assembly.

From the moment molten zinc alloy passes into the mould to the processes of final inspection and quality control would take an absolute minimum of four hours.

Hints for Collectors

The best place to find a collector or to start your own collection is a swapmeet or a fleamarket. Sometimes they are a combination of the two. Although the major auction houses such as Sotheby and Christie's are now only too willing to sell diecast toys, most business is still conducted at the many Toy Collector's Fairs which have sprung up all over Europe and the United States. Many have become established as annual events, some are monthly and a few are even weekly. In 1976/7 there might have been about 400 swapmeets a year and now there are probably around 400 a month in the United Kingdom alone.

National and particularly local papers give details of swapmeets and fleamarkets all the time. The Collector's Gazette, Exchange and Mart, local radio and television as well, of course, as collector's shops are all useful sources of information.

Another, and perhaps unexpected place, which attracts collectors is the traction engine rally. At most of these there are trade stands with dealers buying and selling models. Many are special promotional models advertising a particular show. A publication called 'The World's Fair' lists all the traction engine rallies to be held.

Similarly, the major agricultural shows attract many model enthusiasts as do meetings held by various car clubs and bus and coach preservation societies. Information on meetings is usually available locally. The chance of buying a special promotional model at some of these events is an added incentive for attending.

It is as well to remember that a collector should, whenever possible, buy an additional model as these can become exchangeable and thus a good means of finding those items which may be necessary to complete a collection.

A Note on the Prices

Any price guide is certain to cause controversy and in particular one to an area of collecting where prices are often rising very rapidly. There will always be differences of opinion and you may find that a model that is selling for £50 in one place is available for £5 in another. This is not as true as it was and I hope that this guide will help to set a standard to be followed.

The prices were as accurate as possible at the time of going to press but variations may have occurred in the months it has taken for the book to be produced. Often an item is as valuable as the person can afford to pay and this is particularly true of rare models where cost can become unimportant to the buyer. I would welcome comments from any collector, not only on prices, but on any other aspect of the guide.

How To Use This Guide

As mentioned in the introduction, Corgi's method of numbering their models was and is, at best, erratic. Therefore this guide has been laid out largely in alphabetical order within years of manufacture. Exceptions include Corgi Juniors, which have been put in numerical order. Classifications are listed on the Contents page.

Each entry gives the date a model was issued, deleted or had its number changed for some reason. Where no deletion date is given it should be assumed that the model is currently available.

Prices are listed for Mint Boxed, Mint Unboxed and Good Condition. In the case of boxed sets only a Mint Boxed price is given.

Lengths are given in millimetres.

The price given in the descriptive section is the price at which the model was originally sold.

In the case of models intended for overseas markets the original selling price has been given an approximate sterling equivalent.

Important Notice

The prices given in this guide are the prices that you should expect to pay in order to buy an item. They are not necessarily what you should expect to receive when selling to a dealer.

Although every care has been taken in compiling this price guide, neither the author nor the publisher can accept any responsibility whatsoever for any financial loss or other inconvenience that may result from its use.

Notes on Wheels for Second Type Routemasters and the 469 Baseplate

It was always the general practice for Corgi bus wheels on the second type Routemaster to be fitted snugly in line with the bus bodies, even when they were often unattractive silver whizz wheels. In 1981 a different wheel was introduced which protruded outside the body line. This method was used for many issues and the first of these were all silver. Many people consider this wheel rather ugly and out of place. However, in time one gets used to anything. I personally can never understand why this type of wheel was fitted to rare collector's items.

In recent years the firm have stopped silvering the wheels and also have done away with that rather ugly yellow and red plastic type.

As far as the 469 baseplate is concerned, when the '480 AEC Renown' was produced in 1983 the baseplate on the Corgi bus was changed and the words 'London Transport — Routemaster' disappeared. Since this time all the buses have been manufactured with plain baseplates.

Box End Identities

In 1956 we had the blue box with the black circle and white number. In 1956 we had the blue box with red circle and white number for mechanical models. In 1958 we had a blue and yellow box with a black circle and in 1959 we had a blue and yellow box with a red circle for mechanical models. In 1965 the boxes were blue and yellow with a red circle and then in 1968 the boxes were blue and yellow with a picture, a white square and red number. The year 1970 saw the boxes as yellow and red with a picture and a white square.

The Identity of Wheels on Regular Models.

In 1956 the wheels were smooth with a turned aluminium hub. In 1959 the wheels were ridged with polished aluminium hub. In 1965 there were two versions giving us diecast simulated spokes and also the true spoked wheels. By the year 1970, like most other firms, we saw the introduction of the whizz wheels.

No.468 London Routemaster Bus.
One of the best investments in the world of collecting is a bus, regardless of what livery or dimensions. This red London Transport vehicle had several Corgi adverts connected with it and it is important to note that advertisements do make a difference. For instance, the 'Jackson the Tailor' advert, is worth more than the 'Outspan Orange' advert. Promotional buses are also worth more than the ordinary releases. I will list several of the adverts and promotional buses in a separate section. The first bus released by Corgi was in red with white lines and the advert 'Corgi Toys are Best'. With driver and conductor in blue and various route signs on front, side and rear of vehicle. Silver grille, headlights and wheels with black tyres. White, orange or cream seats and interior. Issued June 1964. Deleted 1975. Price 7/6d. 114mm. DC/P	£15	£12	£10

(in numerical order)

In 1970 the Corgi Company decided to make a series of miniature models called 'Corgi Juniors'. This was to compete with the ever popular Matchbox 1-75 series. The measurements for these tiny models were between 73mm and 78mm and in the first year 40 Corgi Juniors were produced in the normal range. Apart from these small items, the Company produced 'Corgi Junior Extras' and 'Corgi Super Juniors'. There were seven Corgi Junior Extra models in the first year of production and five Corgi Super Juniors, along with six Corgi Junior Gift Sets, and a Corgi Junior Collector's Album. The albums were given away free and were well set out with coloured pictures and stories about the people and transport of such countries as America, Canada, Germany, Africa, Japan, Fiji, India, France and England. These models all had windows with interior detail and suspension and many were fitted with the Corgi special feature, whizz wheels. These were low friction wheels which made the models run further and faster than anything they had ever produced before.

Every Corgi Junior model comes in a bubble pack, bearing a full colour picture of the real vehicle. These were for collectors to cut out and paste into the special album which had been issued to promote the diecast miniatures. The information connected with the cars as in the album, was authentic and had many other fascinating features about the world of transport.

Junior Gift Sets

(in numerical order)

Gift Sets have always been popular and in 1970 the first Junior Sets were released. Although decimal coinage had been well prepared, as far as prices were concerned the old coinage system was used for this first year. Certain special colours connected with early cars are worth noting, especially models made to go with the sets. Collectors should note the model cars which were included in No.3003 Car Transporter Set.

I shall list all the sets as they appeared in numerical order, regardless of the year they were produced.

Corgi Cubs

(in numerical order)

Something big at a smaller price, this was the news from the Corgi Junior section in 1977. Perhaps they wanted something special for Silver Jubilee year and a completely new range of Corgi sized budget priced toys for young children was released. They had simplicity and durability but with the added quality of casting, moulding and finish that you would expect with the name of Corgi. Colour variants are very important and although the Corgi Cub range only lasted from 1977 until 1982 they are certainly a good investment if you have the complete set.

Playcraft Railways

(in numerical order)

Early Playcraft Railway items played a very important part in establishing the Corgi Company. In many parts of the world the various locomotives, fine detailed carriages and other accessories went to make a combination of some of the finest playthings a child could wish to collect. Examine any track in clockwork or electric Playcraft Railway set and one will find high quality. Rails were used everywhere with one standard track for clockwork or electric operation.

Although this book is primarily for collectors of diecast Corgi items, I thought that it would be useful to have a section for the collectors of the early Playcraft products. I have condensed this in several ways. For instance, the dates and deletions when the goods were in production have been left out. The railway side of the Corgi empire had a short production, and the items in this section were made in the early 1950's until the end of the 1960 period.

All the train sets were made in authentic Company liveries with the exact numbers and emblems of their larger counterpart and if I have missed any item out, I must apologise as there were several special one off products made. The clockwork sets were designed by expert engineers. The locos were fitted with a precision built, long running, speed governed mechanism. They will stay on the track and seldom tumble off as many railway items made by other Companies did. The trains will run approximately fourteen times round a standard 25 inch diameter circle, pulling what ever load the particular set may contain.

The special motor provided with every set gives maximum power with a very low current consumption. Although it is rated at 12 volts DC, it will give you reliability and run extremely well from two 4½ volt batteries. You can use a suitable transformer/controller or the Playcraft railways reversing battery connector unit (PR 882A) which will give about 40 hours intermittent operation with two batteries.

The wiring of these sets is simplicity itself. Any person connected with a model club or railway society will help anyone who may find problems. Diagrams are produced in many booklets published by Corgi. The power connector (PR 881) will accept the output leads from any suitable mains transformer/controller with 12–14 volts DC output or from a battery pack with 9–14 volts DC output—preferably Playcraft type (PR 882A).

The Mini Promotional Special

In August 1984, 25 years after the start of production, about 4,906,000 minis had been produced. By 1985, the number must have reached well over the 5 million mark with Mini lovers driving them all over the world.

This is the reason why a special limited edition of 350 Minis has been produced, based on the Corgi mini scale 1:36, with a special message written on the roof of the Mini in a variety of colours: '5,000,000 Mini Lovers Can't Be Wrong'.

These Minis are not available in shops and can only be ordered by sending a Eurocheque to A.J.W. Appleman, Weegbree 60, 1689 NC Zwaag, The Netherlands. The original price including the cost of postage and packing is Dfl. 20.95. Issued October 1985. It will not take very long for 350 models to be snapped up and the collectors value will be high. Length 90mm. £25 £20 £15

Thornycroft Corgi Anniversary Van.

This is a very special and rather attractive model in authentic Corgi livery and decor to celebrate the first anniversary of the new Corgi Company. This model has been produced in a limited edition of not more than 3,000 and a free model will be given to every subscriber to the Official Corgi Collector. Only 2,000 of these will despatched and any late subscribers will receive an alternative Thornycroft Van from the standard range in its place. Issued July 1985. These will become quite rare and much sought after and I see this as a first class investment. £20 £15 £10

The New Corgi Gift Sets

(in numerical order)

The Corgi Company has always made things rather difficult to assess or compile. Car and other products seldom came out in a correct pattern or order. Often colours would appear with the same box number, and the liveries would be oustandingly different.

These new Corgi Sets issued in 1985 may confuse collectors who already have similar gift sets. However, the following is authentic and should prove very interesting to all.

THE POST OFFICE SPECIAL SET

The Datapost Racing Team and the Royal Mail Delivery Fleet

Corgi decided to supply the Post Office with a range of 16 models to be put on sale in the Crown Offices throughout the South East of England. The majority of these models will only be available from the Post Office and it is hoped that the scheme will eventually be extended throughout the United Kingdom.

The models can be bought as single items or in a complete set. There is also a Corgi Escort van with two first class stamps which are special for collectors. The models are all in authentic Post Office livery and the numbered models as individual sales items are as follows:- C611 Escort No.66. C612 Escort No.77. C614 Metro No.77. J90 Escort No.66. J92 Metro No.66. J91 Escort No.77. J93 Metro No.77. and C613 Metro No.66.

All these are in the Datapost Racing Team. Models of the Royal Mail Delivery fleet are available as follows:- C496 Ford Escort Van. C617 Land Rover. J95 General Motors Van. C1144 Articulated Truck. C618 Container Truck. C616 General Motors Van. J94 Metro Van. The full range will be displayed in a smart show case at all the Post Offices taking the models. The individual prices of each model will vary between £1.99p and £3.99p although prices may alter. Prices will include all postage and packing for mail order customers. Mail order customers should contact GORDON DOUGHTY, THE HEAD POST OFFICE, TUSTON, ASHFORD, KENT TN23 1AA.

As these models will be in a limited supply I should advise collectors to purchase any such specialist collections as soon as possible. The original price for the complete range issued in 1985 was £29.44p. A mistake in the Corgi Collector catalogue showed an extra C model with no number which was also missing from the fleet at the bottom of the page but I have included the price in the set for this model which no doubt will have its number revealed by the G.P.O. themselves.

The R.N.L.I. Mumbles Lifeboat Set

This set was produced in a limited edition of 2,000 in aid of the Lifeboat Appeal Fund through the generosity of Corgi Toys and Debenhams Stores of Swansea. The set includes a model Land Rover towing the Mumbles Inshore Rescue Boat on a trailer in authentic lifeboat livery. For every set sold, 50p will be given to the Appeal fund. The price of each set may vary but it certainly will be a rare collector's item within a short time and my estimated collector's price is £35.00

New Corgi Majors

(in alphabetical order)

In this range of trucks one will find the names of famous Companies and although I have researched this section in every possible aspect I apologise for any names which I may have missed. I would like to hear from anyone who may know of any other liveries.

The Classic Classics

(in numerical order)

There are many rare items in the world of collecting and it was not only a pleasant surprise but a great thrill when I opened the 1985 catalogue and saw the return of the Corgi Classics which are now called 'Classic Classics'. These are not to be confused with the new variety of Corgi Classic cars and vans which began in 1984.

Four original castings were discovered belonging to the original Corgi Classics. It was decided to re-issue these fine models but let me point out that these will be slightly different to the originals, and therefore not as valuable. Having said this, they will only be re-issued in a limited edition on a first come, first served basis and although the original retail price agreed by the Corgi Company was between £6 and £8, don't be annoyed or disappointed if they are on sale at double this amount. It is a well known fact to both shop keepers and collectors alike that they will be a limited edition. This means that they only have to change hands twice to go into the almost unobtainable bracket. This is collecting and there is nothing one can do about it. While in Aberdeen say, one of these Classics might be bought for as little as £6 or £7, in London the same model could cost you £30 or vice versa.

There are only four of these superbly engineered models which were originally produced in the 1960's. Each model was produced in three colours in the limited number of 13,500 of each colour. This figure is an authentic statement printed in the Number 4 Issue of the Corgi Collector in February 1985. The insert card in the lid of the pack will have a Limited Edition number applicable only to that one model.

For Export Only

(in alphabetical order)

At the meeting, the first of the new Corgi Company, it was decided to have models for 'Export Only', especially as there seemed to be a demand and a good market for such a move. The first of these models were produced in August, 1984, especially for the Corgi Swedish distributor, although I am sure that other models would be made for other parts of the world. I shall give the English equivalent for original prices and what collectors will expect to pay.

Tanks for Yanks

(in numerical order)

The Corgi Company are working on new ideas all the time. One of them was to manufacture 'Tanks for Yanks'. These were made in a limited supply. They are quite rare and only available in the U.K. at certain local model shops.

Their prices range from £2.95p to £4.95p and I advise collectors to snap them up if they can. Made and released in 1985 all in authentic American Military battle colours and decals.

Corgi Juniors

(in numerical order)

The Corgi Juniors have always been a very important part of the Corgi Company and they always will be. Almost matching strides with their Matchbox counterparts, they sell both to the trader and the general public alike much cheaper than any other miniature model. For the price you pay you get excellent value. The first models issued in 1984 by the new Corgi Company numbered 1 to 50.

Individual models are all approx. 75mm. long DC/P

Gift and Play Sets

(in numerical order)

Boxed sets, whether they be Dinky, Matchbox, Corgi or any other make are bringing very high prices indeed. You may often find that model colour variants appear in sets which do not appear as individual models. This is why a lot of one off models appear unboxed as they escape from their sets at various sales.

You must remember that manufacturers themselves will often run short of a certain paint when they are doing a line of a particular model. This is why those colour oddments are placed in sets. One can hardly send out 50 or 100 cars in individual packs when an order is normally 1,000 or more, whereas in gift sets any colour is acceptable and a delight to whoever purchases them, as this is where those 50 or so odd colours will end up. As far as the Corgi sets are concerned, to give an example high prices gift sets bring; a mint Chipperfield's Circus set has almost reached the £300 price mark and an unbelievable set which a short time ago was thought worthless was the Magic Roundabout set which is now reaching almost £200.

(in numerical order)

The collector will note that the company has reached the stage when the public are getting models on general release as well as the 'Collector Specials' so therefore the prices will stabilise and remain in many cases as 'Current Prices'. Of course the replacement numbers will give a little extra rise to the price of those models which are discontinued. However, these Juniors will not rise in price like the larger scale models. All models are 75mm approx.

Collectors Visit Promotional Special (Open Topped).

Shortly after the formation of the new Corgi Company a special meeting of Collectors and Collector dealers was held at the Swansea Offices in June, 1984. The meeting proved highly beneficial for both the Corgi Company, (the suppliers of buses) and also to the invited guests. A model of the above named bus was presented to each guest to commemorate the first collector's meeting. This model, of course, is not generally available to the normal public. Only a limited number were made in beautiful Corgi livery with the words 'Corgi Collectors Visit — South Wales' on the sides. In this unusual case I cannot give an original price. However, I do know of a model sold for the asking price of £50. My personal estimation of the value of such a model is as follows. 125mm. DC/P — £100

Colt 45 Routemaster.

Guide Dogs Promotional Bus
It was decided to commemorate National Guide Dog week, which started on September 29th 1985, by making available a Guide Dog Promotional Bus or should I say buses. These were in various liveries. Firstly, there was the 'Barclays Bank'. Secondly there was the 'Bradford and Bingley Building Society' and thirdly 'Bowater Scott Andrex'. Issued in splendid liveries, in a limited edition of 5,000 of each model. The original price for each model was £4.50p. plus 60p for packing and postage. These models were available only from Guide Dog Promotion, 81 Thompson Lane, Chadderton, Oldham, Lancs. Although 15,000 may seem a great number, they do not go far when you consider that in Europe alone there are over 5 million collectors. Therefore, I am placing a realistic price for collectors but this figure could go up dramatically. 123mm. In plain boxes.	£15	£10	£7

Special Skyrider Bus. This very rare bus is in red livery and was presented to 50 members of the Bus Collectors Society when they paid a special visit to the factory at Swansea. On the lower deck you will find 'South Wales' written in red with blue and red arrows. On the upper deck the words 'Bus Collectors Society' in blue lettering. This fine model has red wheels with black tyres and has a red band around the centre of the bus. I can tell you officially that there is only one of these in the North East and the others will be scattered in various counties throughout the U.K. The bus was made in 1984 and there is no original price as they were given away. Most people will not part with these, but yet there is still a collector's value placed upon them. After talking to one or two of the people concerned I believe that the value because of its rarity, should they ever become available, would be worth as stated. 125mm.	£250

The T.V.-A.M. Bus.
In special T.V.-A.M. livery, logos and lettering with the words 'Charlie's Bus' on the sides. Only 200 of these models were supplied to the T.V.-A.M. Company in 1984. Others may have leaked from the factory but there would not be many. This is an open topped bus. Once again with no original price as this model was not generally available. I found out what one collector would be willing to accept for this model, so my guiding price from this is as follows. 125mm. DC/P.	£250

Promotional Bus (Frank Thompson's Toy Museum).

Black and white with the upper panels in white and the lower in black. White seats in both upper and lower decks. Silver radiator, headlights and wheel trims with black tyres. This will be one of the rarest models in the world as only one pre-production model was made. With the words 'Welcome to Frank Thompson's Toy Museum' with a motif of a double decker bus in black at each corner on both sides. On the rear upper panel it has number 406 Stoneleigh, Ewell, Epsom, Reigate and Redhill. Then in green with white lettering on either side are the words 'Life as You Like it' and 'As a Kelly Girl Temp'. The front panels read exactly the same. Issued 1983 especially for Frank Thompson. 123mm. £1,000

Empty Boxes

(in alphabetical order)

Empty boxes can be worth a great deal of money, especially if they are signed by a famous personality. Even plain boxes add greatly to the value of a model and are well worth collecting.

Mettoy Tin Plate Products

(in alphabetical order)

In this section I have researched some of the very early products which were made by the 'Mettoy' company between the years 1946 and 1960.

The information about the following models may not be as complete as the other items in this Price Guide. However, to many people these models are very important indeed as they are in the 'Specialist Tin Plate' class. I will give the number of the model, but I am afraid that the colours, because of their many variations, will have to be accepted as they are found by the collector. I think that you will find that regardless of liveries the prices will be practically the same. These are rare items, boxed or otherwise, regardless of whether the item happens to be a plane, a car or a fire engine.

I would like to hear from anyone who may have any of the models mentioned or any that are not mentioned and I hope you are pleased with the following information.

All models were produced between 1946 and 1960. Original prices varied on all models between 1/6d and 7/6d apart from one or two exceptional items.

Tinplate Racers

(in numerical order)

In the years when Britain and the rest of the world were getting back on their feet after the horrors of the 2nd World War, children began eagerly looking to the shops for toys and more toys. Among the first to produce several playthings were the workers at the 'Mettoy Company'. I have already given details of the fire engines, the lorries and trucks along with details of the aeroplanes, which are rather scarce in real mint condition.

The following racers were made between 1946 and 1954. They were brightly coloured in a mixture of red, yellow, blue, and silver liveries. Each was numbered and had solid tinplate wheels. The original price of each model would vary between 2/6d and 3/6d and they were between 190 and 210mm long.

Catalogues

Like empty boxes, catalogues are also very important and are worth a considerable sum of money, especially if you have the complete set. It may seem strange when these little booklets which were produced by the Company and given away free, would one day become almost antiques in their own right. Any information is vital for people who collect anything, in this case diecast and plastic Corgi toys.

The early catalogues came in the late 1950's, although before them there were advertising leaflets for the benefit mainly of wholesalers and shopkeepers. Should any of you know of any other catalogues, dealing with the Corgi models, I should be pleased to hear from you, but my research has enabled me to set out the following information.

Trade Catalogues by Mettoy

Some of the best catalogues with authentic information have always been available at trade shows and toy fairs, especially at Earls Court in London. These catalogues are very valuable if you are lucky enough to have them. My first research of such catalogues began at Earls Court in 1966 when some of the best toys from all parts of the world were on exhibition. If anyone has any earlier catalogues I would like to hear from them.

Notes

Frank Thompson's Corgi Toy Price Guide is an invaluable companion for collectors of the models made by this prestigious and still active firm.

Although founded a great deal later than Dinky, the quality of their products soon established Corgi as a leading manufacturer of die cast toys. Windows, sprung suspension and other details gave the models a quality feel which, in latter years, has greatly added to their collectability.

For ease of reference the models have been grouped in years of manufacture and in alphabetical order within those years. Details of colour, years of issue and deletion, original price, length and full descriptions of each model are accompanied by the prices that a collector should expect to pay for them. These prices have been graded as Mint and Boxed, Mint Unboxed and Good Condition. Also in the book is information on empty boxes – an increasingly important area of collecting.

Frank Thompson has been collecting model toys for over thirty years and was one of the first people to realise their value. He is well known as a radio and television personality and he tours the country with his mobile toy museum, appearing frequently at County Shows and other similar events.
